

Experience the power of dramatic play.

Dramatic play is a valuable part of a child's daily curriculum. We offer over thirty products that encourage and support social and dramatic play.

Why is Dramatic Play so important?

Dramatic play, especially in a child's early years, is very beneficial. While it may seem that "playing pretend" is just an insignificant form of play, dramatic play provides children an opportunity to work through emotions, develop and learn important social skills, and develop expressive language. By creating their own settings and developing their own characters, children are placed in the position of author allowing them to take initiative and control the story.

Here at Grounds For Play, we "set the stage" for dramatic play by offering great products that encourage and inspire children to act out stories and create narratives with other children.

How do I incorporate dramatic play?

Create a setting for a "day on the town" by creating a dramatic play area centered around a Trike Track. Add playhouses and store façades to create a small village and let your children's imaginations soar!
